Burgess eyes slash in ASI budget

Threatens to exercise veto on Kaydette wipeout

By John Husear
Staff Writer

ASI President Warren Burgess threatened to exercise his right of veto power to override an amendment to obliterate the 1969-70 ASI budget of the Kaydettes, a marching military service group, during the budget hearings at the Student Affairs Council Tuesday night.

Of the 10 proposed amendments to the budget, four were defeated while six passed leaving a $298 deficit in the budget.

After all amendments were voted upon, a motion was made to accept the new budget. A roll call vote was called for after the initial aye-nay vote placed a great deal of confusion in the minds of council members. Bill 68-3, the budget, was passed on a 7-yes, 6-no and 3-abstention decision after ASI Vice President Michael Robinson voted yes to break a 6-6 tie.

Some question was raised as to why a 16-yes vote wasn't given. The answer appears to be an unbalanced budget and the failure of some council members to suggest additional amendments for cuts or increases deemed necessary for some clubs.

Jim Woest, Engineering Council, commented, "I am in sympathy with Roy Gersten, ASI Business Manager, facing the problems of an unbalanced budget."

A definite expense-income total of the new budget was not given.

At press time it was unknown if Burgess would veto the Kaydette amendment. If he does, the amendment will be reconsidered in two weeks. However, SAC's last meeting of the year will be next Tuesday. This could mean that Kaydettes will receive their $500 budget request.

Opposition centering around this amendment seemed a pro-ROTC versus an anti-ROTC philosophy. Author of the amendment, Wayne Parks, stressed that this was not the intent behind his proposal, but rather a question of effectiveness and recognition gained by Kaydettes.

Another military group, the ROTC Drill Team was a proposed target of a total $700 elimination of their budget. This amendment was defeated unanimously.

Despite an amendment passed outlining financial guidelines for advertising procedures of Mustang Daily, its request for an additional $2000 to meet increased production costs and increased newspaper production was significantly defeated.

Discussion occurred between SAC and Mike Jones, Mustang Daily business manager; George Ramos, editor-in-chief; Curt Strong, chairman of Publishers' Board; Paul Banke, author of the guideline amendment and Gersten. It centered on financial difficulties and procedures to eliminate in the future write-offs of uncollected debts of Mustang Daily advertisers.

A total of $2998.27 in uncollected debts to Mustang Daily from 1961 to 1969 in the form of a Finance Committee recommendation was passed by SAC allowing an ASI write-off for all debts. The campus newspaper will receive a $2000 subsidy next year.

The major controversy centered around section 4-C of the amendment. That section of the bill gives the Student Executive Cabinet the power to freeze all Mustang Daily funds if the terms of the amendment are not stringently adhered to.

Managing Editor Kathy Lovett suggested that the control be given to the Student Publishers' (continued to page 5)

Music fest set tonight

The Spring Concert tonight and tomorrow night in the Little Theater will feature a first for the college—two bands playing on the same program.

On the program which starts at 8 p.m. both nights will be the 63-member Symphonic Band and the new 42-piece Concert Band. Admission price is $1.25 for the general public and 75 cents for students.

Joining in with the larger groups will be a 6-member Dixie Land Band and a Percussion Ensemble. The concert will be under the direction of William V. Johnson.

Final newspaper

This is the final edition of Mustang Daily for this school year.

An abbreviated edition of the campus newspaper, Summer Mustang, will be issued Summer Quarter.

Loren Nicholson, adviser for the summer paper, said volunteers to work on the staff should contact him or John FitzRandolph, editor, in Graphic Arts 226.

Radicals are destroyers

Troopers take awards

by Tim Long
Staff Writer

To get into the stadium was a simple procedure. All you had to do was sign your name, put down your affiliation and address and make a statement of your intentions to the man at the gate.

The few spectators, essentially newsmen and parents of the ROTC cadets who were to receive awards, waited for the appearance of the guest of honor. Finally everyone was in place and President Kennedy made his entrance.

Kennedy strolled down the line of guests, shaking hands. After he sat down the cadets and the lone Kadette who were to receive awards were brought before the speakers stand. The awards could be grouped into several categories: leadership, scholarship, marksmanship drill, and esprit de corps.

After the awards had been presented, Kennedy stepped up to the microphone and, facing the Corps of Cadets and began his speech: "Never in the 17 years that ROTC has been on this campus has there been a question in my mind about its importance on this campus. Today I believe more strongly than ever in the importance of ROTC.

"We are interested in preserving ROTC on this campus," Kennedy stated. "Those who would eliminate ROTC fail to realize that this would in no way reduce the need for officers in our military."

"Elimination of ROTC would mean that future officers would associate only with other future officers while in college. ROTC helps to integrate the military and civilian points of view."

Kennedy called radical students who have turned away from non-violent protest destroyers of democracy. "These destroyers of democracy," Kennedy raised his voice in emphasis at this point, "who speak against war and hate are the first ones to use violence to destroy the things that they themselves hate."

If the radicals succeed in their goals, Kennedy warned, we would be left defenseless when our real enemies landed on our shores. "The first people to be eliminated by a totalitarian type of government," Kennedy said, "are these revolutionary idealists."

Kennedy said, "Our greatest defense is not our armament (continued to page 4)

GOP 'brass' speaks

by Ken Hyland
Staff Writer

Republican nobility was seated at the head table last Saturday night when the California College Republicans held their Fourth Annual Awards Banquet at the Motel Inn.

The high-ranking Republican officers were Lieutenant Governor Edward Rienecke, Senator Donald Grunske, Congressman William Talcot, and State Assemblyman Thomas Kuchel.

After dinner the Lieutenant Governor gave a speech on states rights, victory of the Republican Party, college disorders, and the duties of the Lieutenant Governor.

Rienecke voiced a feeling that the federal government was getting too big and too cumbersome to handle so many problems that basically deal with the state government. He felt that these jobs could be handled much more efficiently if the money was handed over to the state governments. He also stated that with a Republican in the White House this would come much closer to being a reality.

Dangerous precedent

A dangerous precedent was set on this campus Tuesday night. SAC (Student Affairs Council) approved an amendment to Budget Bill 68-3 which gives SEC (Student Executive Cabinet) the power to freeze any or all Mustang Daily funds if certain guidelines aren't adhered to.

Paul Banke, right hand man to newly elected ASI President Paul Kresge, authored the amendment in question.

Under questioning, Banke said that SEC only had the power theoretically. An extreme situation would have to occur in order for SEC to take such measures, he added.

However, Mustang Daily questions the right of any group of students to hold the power to arbitrarily suspend the publication of the newspaper.

It was argued Tuesday night that the $2,000 subsidy granted Mustang Daily for next year gives SAC the right to decide who has control over newspaper funds. However, that power has been extended to include all monies that Mustang Daily receives.

SEC has the power to freeze all advertising revenue that the paper earns on its own, revenue that has been paying for the paper for years.

SAC says it wants no editorial control over Mustang Daily, but by giving SEC the power to freeze funds they receive editorial control per se.

The danger of Tuesday night's decision is not to Mustang Daily because it is too late for next year. The danger lies in the fact that other groups may find the same power put over them and they will not be able to fight it, just as we were not able to.

... What this means

Now that you've read the lead editorial, here's something to think about.

In last Wednesday's, Mustang Daily called for a truce between the paper and the ASI president.

Although we didn't support Paul Kresge in his successful ASI presidency bid, we felt it was our duty to congratulate him. We noted, "Maybe he can improve the historical bad feeling between Mustang Daily and the ASI president."

Mr. Kresge is off on the wrong foot with next year's editor.

We met him halfway with the amendment attached to the $2,000 subsidy granted by Students Affairs Council. However, he is alienating the newspaper by this "democratic attempt of fiscal responsibility."

Next year should be quite interesting.

Nasty pictures on library wall?

Editor:

Please print this letter in the Mustang Daily and refer it to any person who can do something about the following situation; perhaps the person who approves Cal Poly's art displays.

I do alot of studying in the reference part of the school library. Last week, as I came out of that room on my way home, I was horrified at what I saw. Among the pictures in the art display, this time, is one that is unavoidable and which should cause the students of Cal Poly to be very ashamed of the choices of art which is approved for everyone's viewing.

I attended Fresno State last year, and they had a similar problem. A few pictures were put in the library on display of a pornographic nature: the students objected, brought it to the attention of Dr. Ness (President of the college), and the pictures were removed immediately. Can the students of Cal Poly do the same? If you think so, it will only take a moment to object.

Sincerely,

Linda L. Roberts

Kudo to KCPR

Editor:

We, the members of the Baseball Team, wish to let the entire college community know how much we appreciate the efforts of KCPR (campus radio).

Due to the chronic lack of spectators at the Mustang diamond, it was difficult to develop enthusiasm. The KCPR interest in Cal Poly baseball has shown us that some people are interested in baseball. They worked hard and did an excellent job of adding completeness to our baseball games.

We have had many comments from visiting teams and interested persons on the fine public relations job and student interest KCPR has developed.

Once again, KCPR staff, thanks for showing an interest in us.

Profit or prophet

Editor:

Last week I wrote a short letter attempting to point out some limitations in the concept of freedom of the press. Last Monday, I was more than a little surprised with your editorial column. Believe me; my question was not "Why Americans' founding fathers didn't guarantee the money needed to exercise the sacred freedom of the press." Allow me to be more precise.

The question that utterly perplexes me is why one nickel of my money should go to support the type of journalism that has recently overcome the Mustang Daily under the guise of news. Apparently, your editors have taken upon themselves the responsibility of enlightening me in the way of the new left, the third world, the drug cult, and the anti-war set. This may come as a surprise to you, but other news media which I follow closely give regular significant coverage to these aspects of our modern society.

I consider the Mustang Daily to be neither the sage interpreter of the present nor the prophet of the future. I don't even think that Mustang Daily is a particularly outstanding newspaper.

Sincerely,

Mark L. Bigelow

Editor's note:

The question was reviewed by Student Affairs Council last Tuesday and, apparently, they are willing to support Mustang Daily.

If you still disagree, we suggest you go to them supposedly they are your representatives.

Editor praised

Mustang Daily would like to give special recognition to Ron Buzard as editor of the special Poverty Edition on Wednesday. The credits on page 2 neglected to give him the credit due him for his fine work on the special edition.

Rienecke raps issues

said that for too long while he was in Washington he had always had to vote no on most of the "Great Society" programs. Now that the Republicans are in control he can vote "yes" on some good programs and can even start some himself.

He also talked about the disorders on college campuses. Because he was talking to a group that was basically made up of college students, Rienecke based his talk on what the average student could do to discourage riots on college campuses.

When a student goes to look around at another college campus instead of just acting like a tourist, he should strike up a conversation with some of the students at these riot-torn campuses and show them that they can get a good education without destroying the college itself.

He also feels that sometimes the "silent majority" is not always a majority. Too many people are seeing the newspaper reports on these riots and are thinking this is being done by the majority students. Sometimes this will even convince the students themselves that they are in the minority so they go out and join the other side.

Rienecke also joked that whenever the Governor was out of the state everything seemed to go wrong. He mentioned that the Governor must have a crystal ball, and he wished he knew where it was.

He then brought to mind an incident that happened recently when he was at a testimonial dinner given for himself. The people presented the Lieutenant Governor with a California State flag. This was not like the usual state flag, instead of the bear walking across the red line, he was sitting on it and holding his paws over his ears.

The Lieutenant Governor also told the duties and problems. He said there are some 14 different committees that he serves on. But so far during his two months in office, he hasn't found them all. He mentioned that it is his duty to act as acting Governor when Governor Reagan is out of the state.

After the dinner the awards were given to six members of the local CCR club that have done work above and beyond what is expected of the average member.

but our ideals."

Kennedy stopped and looked at the assembled corps of cadets for a few moments before ending his speech.

"While we pray fervently for peace in Vietnam," Kennedy said, "we will also pray that none of the men on this field will ever have to go to Vietnam or any other place in this world where men are shooting at one another."

The speech was ended. It served to reaffirm the policy laid down in a speech Kennedy had made almost exactly one year ago. It placed this college squarely behind the maintaining of ROTC on the campus and served notice that this college would not look with favor on those who would dislodge ROTC from this community.

The corps was brought to attention and marched past the president out of the stadium. The Fourteenth Annual Presidents Review was officially ended.

U. S. servicemen use 855 pounds of fluid milk and cream per man yearly, about 98 pounds more apiece than they did 15 years ago.

Board and the ASI Business Manager in addition to the SEC. This would not take the power of publication control away from the SPB which was originally established to take the control of publications out of the main body of student government. However, the suggestion was not considered.

On the following day, the Publications Policy and Procedures Guidelines Development Committee met and noted the clause is in direct conflict with the policy and guidelines set up for publications on campus.

In the governing paper, the duties and responsibilities of Publishers' Board clearly stated that the board has the power "to approve and administer the budget of the publications receiving ASI financial support, including authority to make internal budgetary adjustments."

Originally, the Policy and Guidelines for the Student Publications Program was approved by Dr. Robert E. Kennedy, SAC and the Faculty-Staff Council.

Hicks ends Mustang coaching career

Last weekend marked the end of the coaching careers of one of Cal Poly's finest mentors. Head baseball coach Bill Hicks saw final action at the helm of the Mustang team last Saturday at Cal State LA, thus ending his 430-game reign.

Next year Coach Hicks will increase his class load within the PE department and assist the new diamond boss, Augie Garrido, with the pitchers and catchers.

"This season we suffered the worse seige of injuries that I have seen in 20 years of coaching," related Hicks in reflecting upon the season. "The injured kids hurt our season, but they showed courage beyond the call of duty by playing while they were injured."

Pitchers Dean Treanor and Mike Young, along with center fielder Mike Marostica, short-stop Rick Pence, right fielder Steve Koski, and left fielder Mike Nichols were all cited by Hicks for their efforts on the Mustang squad this year. Treanor, Marostica, Pence, and Young were elected to berths on the all-CCAA team for 1969.

Coach Hicks emphasized the point that he was not trying to be critical when asked his opinion of the Mustang Athletic Department. "The students must realize that in order to have a first class program they must be willing to pay money. Cal Poly and students in general have never realized the department's extent of money needs."

Hicks cited a few examples to stress the importance of this point. Whereas hotels on away trips used to cost $3.50 per night per man, these same accommodations now cost $6.50. Meals have increased accordingly, jumping from $2.50 to $3.50 each. The rising cost of living has not been considered in the athletic department's budget.

Coach Hicks praised the support his team received from students attending this season's games. "The support we had was good—even better than previous seasons." According to the baseball mentor, this support was generated mainly by KCPR's live broadcasts of the home games. Hicks was also grateful for the "support of other athletes" who turned out to boost his team's spirit.

CCAA members will split into two leagues next year. San Fernando Valley State, Poly Pomona, Cal Poly SLO, and Fullerton will be joined by UC Riverside to reform the present league.

"I'll be sorry to see the league break up," commented Hicks. "The CCAA is a good solid league with a great deal of tradition. Poly has a meaningful relationship with Fresno State and I hope it won't diminish next year. The new league, however, will be of no lower caliber."

Coach Hicks presented mixed views in relation to the new baseball park scheduled for Poly. "A new park would be a definite asset to the PE department, however, the school could save a lot of money by renovating our present park. By taking the track out and giving the diamond about 40 more feet, the old park would be very nice."

The new ball park is planned to be constructed in the vacant field across from the Yosemite dorms. Such a location would remedy the present backwards-oriented situation of the present Mustang diamond.

"If the new park is built," added Hicks, "then lights should definitely be considered. Such a ball park would allow more townspeople to participate by coming to the games after work. A lighted diamond would also prevent student athletes from having to miss classes, and we could play more games during the week. The gate receipts of this new park could possibly help baseball pay for itself."

Harper prepares team for scrimmage

Coach Joe Harper and his football coaching crew will present their spring football team to the student body Saturday evening in the annual intrasquad game at Mustang Stadium. Kick-off time is set for 8 p.m. Tickets are 50 cents for students and $1 for adults.

The pre-season recruits will be divided into a green team and a white team. Harper has placed his number one offensive and defensive teams on the green team, while the second two teams will wear the white.

"We expect a high scoring, wide open game," remarked Harper in anticipation of the game's outcome. "We intend to put the ball in the air quite a bit."

One of Harper's pre-season objectives was to improve on last season's passing game. Saturday night will offer the first glimpse of Harper's aerial tactics.

Last Saturday Cal Poly staged its first spring football coaching clinic in conjunction with the weekly Mustang scrimmage. Harper termed the clinic a success and plans to make it a yearly event. "Our passing looked much better than it did the week before. I was pleased with the improvement," Harper related.

Injuries have plagued the Mustang spring football effort and several regular starters will be absent from Saturday's clash. Linebacker Les Treadwell and defensive stalwart Mike Church are recovering from knee surgery. Dennis Petrcek, a 235-pound tackle is recovering from a recent neck operation. He is expected to be ready for fall action.

Letterman Ross Bauer is out with a broken hand and cheekbone, while teammates Jack Green and Elias Hardy are both suffering from sprained knees. Idaho State transfer Ed Davin, and former frosh standout Paul Ramsay are both recovering from knee surgery and will not participate tomorrow night.

Prior to the game the Mustang Booster Club is sponsoring a barbeque at the Veterans Memorial building beginning with a social hour at 5 p.m. Guest speaker for the event will be John Madden, head coach for the Oakland Raiders and a former Poly all-CCAA tackle. Currently Madden is the youngest head coach in pro football.

Tickets for the barbeque are priced at $5 and will include admission to the game.

You Can Help Revitalize the Greatest City in the World

New York City — a city of constant challenge — offers a variety of opportunities for Engineers who would enjoy a demanding career, that is personally rewarding.

Engineering careers with the City of New York offer excellent opportunities for advancement and better salaries than ever before. But real job satisfaction can come from helping to improve life for over eight million people in the greatest city in the world.

For the Engineer this means helping to plan and construct new schools, hospitals, subways, bridges and miles of new highways; to devise lower cost housing; to eliminate air & water pollution; and to plan & implement sanitary engineering programs. This means you will be participating in programs of essential public service as well as great professional challenge.

These are just some of the many exciting projects open to you as a City Engineer. Nowhere else, will you find greater opportunities for such valuable experience to broaden your specialty.

Immediate openings are now available in many of our City agencies for trainee, junior and assistant level Engineers.

June graduates will be hired as Junior Engineers. Students receiving degrees in June, 1970 can be hired this summer as Engineer trainees — and then take leave of absence to return to school for degree.

New York City is, of course, an Equal Opportunity Employer. Please write or call and we will send you full details.

Baltimore Colts plan drills at Poly

Chances are that if you happen to be strolling through the Cal Poly campus come August you just might bump into some of the brightest sports luminaries of the day.

How about Johnny Unitas, Bubba Smith, Earl Morrall, John MacKey, Dennis Gaubatz, Tom Matte or Bobby Boyd?

Of course, they're members of the Baltimore Colts, champions of the National Football League. And they'll be on campus this summer to conduct part of their pre-season training program.

Cal Poly Athletic Director Joe

Harper met with representatives of the Baltimore organization on Wednesday to iron out last minute details.

Baltimore, one of the perennial powers in the NFL, will be on campus from August 4 through August 14. They will come here after playing an exhibition game at San Diego. While they are quartered on campus they will travel to Oakland to face the Raiders and after breaking camp here will move on to Houston for an exhibition with the Oilers.

Approximately 75 to 80 will be in the Colt entourage. They will be quartered in Tenaya Hall while on campus. Meals will be eaten at a training table in the College Dining Hall.

Workouts will be held in Mustang Stadium and will be open to the public free of charge.

Baltimore will pay the college on a cost basis for services and will make a remuneration in the form of a scholarship for Mustang athletes.

A year ago the college attempted to entice the San Francisco 49ers to hold pre-season workouts on campus, but arrangements broke down in the final planning stages.

Intramural basketball

The Intramural Basketball quarter-finals got under way last Monday night as 13 teams participated in the playoff competition for the championship. The first and second place teams in each of the six leagues qualified for the playoffs.

In the games that began at 7 p.m., Fremont (5-0), behind the 33 point performance of Brummer topped Buck Buck (3-2), 86-72. Graf scored 26 points in the losing cause for the Buck Bucks. Mat Pica PI defeated the Crops Club, 60-58, in a game protested by the losers. Underwood led all scorers with 22 points for the Crops Club. In other 7 p.m. action, Delta Phi (5-0) whipped the Boleros (4-1), 78-68, with Crandall scoring 24 points for the victors.

Three more games followed the completion of the preceding contests which were marred by a couple of injuries. One player sustained a groin injury in the Ballers 69-46 rout over the Wee Five. Northcraft and Otto paced the Ballers (5-0) with 19 and 17 points respectively, over the Five (4-1). Another ballplayer received a broken ankle during the fourth quarter of a game conceded by Muir II. Third Place (5-0) was way ahead of Muir II (3-2), 60-38, when the accident occurred. Led by Lowe's 24 points, the Studs, (4-1) outlasted Design, 73-67, in the last game of the evening.
